"The County Fair" Again on the Boards at Prector's.

R. S. Willard, an actor who is conscientious, able and artistic, began an engagement at the Star Theatre last night in Henry Arthur Jones's play, "The Middleman," which was criticised in these columns when it was first produced at Paliner's Theatre. It is a first produced at Paliner's Theat first produced at Palmer's Theatre. It is a heatrical play, but a strongly interesting ne, and certainly the best thing in Mr. illard's repertoire. The star had the suport of an excellent company, including Marie urroughs, Nannie Craddock, Maxim Eillot, cetth Wakeman, Ethet Bouglass, Emma ivers, Royce Carleton, Louis Manson, Harry Cone and Fred Tyler.

"The County Pair," a great favorite in THE EVENING WORLD. York, returned to this city last night and opened at Proctor's Twent; third Street to-day, living in three almost bare rooms on Theatre, where it met with immense success the top floor of the five-story tenement-house a few seasons ago. "Aunt Bridgets Baby," a farce-comedy of the most approved fashion, began an engagement at the Windsor Theatre is at night. It has brightened up with new songs and dances, and can be profitably seen by those who have already enjoyed its fun. That is where the advantage of farce-comedy comes in. The oldest chestnut can be renovated. In the cast were George W. Munroe, Alf Hampton, Neille Rosebud and William Guiberson. NEW PARK TREATRE.

NEW PARK THRATRE.

The title of "The Night Owls" organization is not alburing, but the piece itself is much better, and the audience at the New Park Theatre hast night was not disappointed. The leading role was played by Fauline Markham, who is still a clever and comely woman. The spectacular burlesque in which she was seen here the name of "Satan's Enchantment." Among "The Night Owls" are a number of competent propte and pretty women.
